Friends University & Central Christian Academy
Dual Credit Partnership agreement

Friends University & Central Christian Academy share a mission to provide education offerings in a distinctly Christian environment. This agreement outlines key components of a dual credit program designed to provide Christian classes for students at both the high school and college level. Dual credit will provide students with future opportunities to further their career by pursing a double major, study abroad or participate in experiential learning opportunities or graduate college early. These options not only reduce the overall cost of education but also provide students with key experiences to benefit future employment opportunities.

The following outlines an agreement by both institutions:

Friends University will:

- Provide dual credit classes through CCA at a cost of no more than $70/credit hour and agrees not to raise the cost of dual credit classes for at least 3 years.
- Provide teachers a stipend of $20/student enrolled in dual credit through Friends University and agrees not to reduce this amount for at least 3 years.
- Provide 1 college transcript at a reduced charge ($5 for a transcript)
- Provide a Friends University ID card to enrolled dual credit students. This college ID will gain students free admission to on-site athletic competitions and fine arts events, access to the student center, student discounts at the campus bookstore, and access to the university library.
- Host students and staff from CCA for college visits, FAFSA events, and other opportunities to promote a successful college transition for CCA students and families.

Central Christian Academy (CCA) will:

- Offer dual credit classes through Friends University, providing Friends University the first right for college classes.
- Partner with Friends University to help all students apply, enroll, and pay for dual credit classes on or prior to the deadline for each semester.
- Keep current records for dual credit instructors and submit syllabus for dual credit classes each semester it is offered.

Together, Friends University and Central Christian Academy seek to provide and promote Christian education. This agreement serves as an overview of the dual credit program and will be updated by either side in good faith as changes are discussed and decided.
