

Earn a Bachelor of Arts in Spanish

featuring a new emphasis on translation and interpretation

Friends University is pleased to announce a new focus on translation and interpretation as part of our Spanish degree.

We are looking for students who want to:

- Share their love of Spanish language and culture with others.
- Make themselves more marketable to potential employers.
- Travel outside the U.S. to learn about other cultures and discover their true potential as world citizens.
- Serve others at the local, national and international levels.

Areas of Potential Employment

- Business and industry
- International commerce
- Travel companies
- Media relations
- Medicine
- Government
- Legal services
- Education
- Social services

Earn college credit for high school Spanish credits

Students may receive four to 16 credit hours for prior Spanish studies earned during high school if they complete a higher-level course at Friends with a "B" or better. For students who are already highly proficient in Spanish, this could give them the opportunity to complete the program in fewer semesters and spend their remaining time studying abroad and gaining experience in a Spanish culture.
